Art Unit: 3682

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-49, drawn to bearing devices and methods, classified in class 384, subclass 462.
- II. Claims 50-53, drawn to lubricant, classified in class 508, subclass 103.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and II are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the combination does not require the nanoparticles to be anodic to steel, nor have a particular concentration (evidence claim 1). The subcombination has separate utility such as for a device other than one having metallic components.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
